History, it is said, repeats itself, and the work now going on all over these gold fields will soon produce gold in sufficient quantities to attract the attention of the whole world. It will be a permanent production, too, and not of the effervescent character common to all placer ground, that sooner or later ceases to be productive.

different. Here the original mountains or upheavals have been ground off by glaciers, and the debitus carried away, leaving the entire country, generally speaking, bare of all covering. In this gigantic denudation and grinding off of the rock, everywhere visible, signs of placer on a scale sufficient to pay for working have been located. Indeed, there has been no intelligent effort directed toward that end. The gold in the veins exposed throughout Ontario must have gone somewhere in the glacial drift. But where? That is the question. It may be in the bottom of the numerous deep lakes, or it may be deposited in the gravel beds scattered over Minnesota and the Dakotas. The recent excitement regarding placer gold on the Sisseton Indian reservation in South Dakota was due to a small lot of placer gold being found in a gravel deposit, and the writer succeeded in panning a little gold from a creek bed at Gang in the same State in 1878.

One of the reports of the Ontario bureau of mines states that the most favorable placer gold would be on the Little Turtle river, in the Seine River district, but so far as THE MINER is advised, no systematic effort has been made to test that field. Another probable field for placer gold is on the Rat Root river, south of Rainy Lake City, in Minnesota. Indeed placer gold was obtained there about four years ago by an old trapper, but he refused to divulge the location. He, however, brought some to that town that showed particles of gold under a glass.

Some day some one may locate the hiding place of the gold loosened from its original resting place by nature's stamp mill during the glacial age, but meantime, the work of extracting the precious metal from its rocky case-mate will go on in this region in ever-increasing volume. The output of nearly half a million dollars last year from Lake of the Woods region should be increased four fold this year, and we hope and believe that gold production here will yet rival the Cripple Creek region, which produced $1,000,000 in June, besieging an output by private corporations which refuse to divulge the exact amount of their earnings.

The shareholders are confident that once a shaft is put down in the Lake of the Woods, as it is proposed, the working mine will be added to the ever-increasing list of working properties that is bringing the name of the Lake of the Woods to the front, as a district in which fine mining can be done as cheaply and as profitably as in any other place in the world.

The annual meeting of The New Sabaskong Gold Mining Company of Ontario Limited, was held at the head office of the Company, Carmichael Block on Saturday, July 14, 1900.

The following gentlemen were elected directors for the ensuing year:

James Coquine, M. P. P., Port Arthur; A. M. Willy, customs collector, Port Arthur; George Drewry, Angus Carmichael, E. A. Chapman, Frank Gardner, Rat Portage; John T. Gilmore, warden Central Prison, Toronto; H. M. Boyd, customs broker, Montreal.

The Company own what is known locally as "The Sabaskong mining locations," being part of the territory claimed as Indian Reserve 383, Lake of the Woods, and composed of locations 1 to 18 inclusive, comprising 2,400 acres. The property lies about six miles south of Rat Portage, and is divided from the Sultana Island, and the "Sultana" mine by an arm of Bald Indian Bay a strip of water a few hundred feet in width. They commenced active operations on April 22nd, 1890. Buildings were erected on Location 18 and a gang of miners were at work all summer stripping, crosscutting, test-pitting, and otherwise developing a large deposit on that location.

The miners also uncovered and crossed out and put down test pits on another vein not yet been prospected, and there is every indication to believe that some very rich veins will be discovered when these locations are actively worked.

It is the intention of the company to sink a shaft on the location known as No. 13 and active work will be started in that direction at once. The company is a close corporation, has no liabilities and its stock has never been placed upon the market, but it is which is at present for sale.

The officers of the company are James Coquine, M. P. P., president; George Drewry, vice-president; G. A. K. Head, treasurer; Ed. Coigne, secretary.

The shareholders are confident that once a shaft is put down in the Lake of the Woods, as it is proposed, the working mine will be added to the ever-increasing list of working properties that is bringing the name of the Lake of the Woods to the front, as a district in which fine mining can be done as cheaply and as profitably as in any other place in the world.

Capt. Triggs has started another gang to work on the Triggs mine and has taken out teams to haul 1,000 tons of ore to be put on barges for the Keewatin Reduction works. This run of 1,000 tons will probably determine the advisability of placing a mill on the property in the near future.

The annual meeting of The New Sabaskong Gold Mining Company of Ontario Limited, was held at the head office of the Company, Carmichael Block on Saturday, July 14, 1900.

The company will have by August 1st a sufficient supply of coal to last over a year.

These improvements at the Mikado give the most striking evidence of the permanency of the gold mining industry in this district. The company has worked quietly and satisfactorily to themselves that they had a property which was a splendidly paying prospect, and having come to this conclusion they determined that it would pay more handsomely if worked in big way. At once decided on the extensive improvements now being made.

Eldorado Stamps Will Drop.

E. E. Gatenbury was in town a week from the Eldorado mine and reports that things are moving along in fine shape. He expects to have the stamps dropping in a week and thinks he will be able to bring in some perfectly sized bricks. Judging from sample of ore Mr. Gatenbury says we are of the opinion that the stamp should average very high. In event the mine is being worked economically that it will have to be low value indeed not to pay. We expect to give our readers very aging news from the Eldorado very long.

Big Master Mine.

The machinery for the Big Master mine arrived at Wabigoon May 24th last and is being taken to the site under the direction of Mr. D. S. Smith, manager of the Intersta Consolidated Mineral Co. The machinery consists of a 40 h.p. steel boiler at 150 lbs. pressure, a cage to receive ore, a cable to hoist from 300 ft. to 1,000 ft. ears, and a pump, and all the apparatus needed in the placing of the timber. All the machinery was sent by the Jenckes Machine Co. of Sherbrooke.

The work heretofore on the Big Master mine is being well performed, and it is what the partners have been installed, we may look forward to the development of the property.

Excursions to Rat Portage.

The railroads to the north make every effort to see a change of the traffic to the central goldfields. The Great Northern Railway has authorized a rate from St. Paul on the first and third Tuesdays of each month round trip to Winnipeg for $15.00. The St. Paul and Duluth railway has also authorized a rate of $20.00 from St. Paul to Rat Portage and return via Lake Superior and over the C.P.R. from Port Arthur. This includes meal and berth on steamer. There must be party of 10 in order to secure this rate.

THE RACE OF LIFE

IN KNOX CHURCH ON SUNDAY LAST

THE VALUE OF TRAINING CHILDREN
FOR VARIOUS REQUIREMENTS
BY A SEMINARY

It is good reason for asking the friends of youth to point a moral. The qualities needed, antientrained on the playground are such as life demands. Herein is the condemnation of our games and contests, that they consume rather than renew energy; that youth may have strength, alertness, judgment, endurance for these, but carry none of these qualities into school, to the store or office, to the conflict between right and wrong within and without. When the Colosseum, Rome's great amphitheatre, was falling into disrepair, the citizens carried away the stones therewith to build their dwellings... Had not authority interfered, the great structure would soon have been lost in the buildings reared with its material, let us learn to incorporate into life the good qualities displayed in our recreations and friendly strife. Our amusements will then contribute instead to efficiency in the work of every day. They will become educational in the best sense. The race of life which this passage speaks has much in common with any ordinary trial of speed, skill and strength, calibreared. Hence we may consider:

YEARS OF PAIN.

The Experience of Mr. William Smith, of Hawkesbury, who Suffered for Many Years from Kidney Trouble.
From the Post, Hawkesbury, Ont.

Everybody in Hawkesbury knows Mr. William Smith. He came here when the town was yet in its village days, as one of the lumber company's staff of mechanics. In 1851 Mr. Smith was appointed town constable, and filled that position until very recently. As is well known to many of Mr. Smith's friends, he has suffered much from kidney trouble for quite a number of years past, and at times the pain in his back was so great that he was almost physically incapable. He doctored a great deal, sometimes getting temporary relief, but the course of the trouble was not removed and soon the pains began again, aggravated by cold and exposure. At last he looked up to this one whom no man could save him, and turned to God. The years might still have been before him when he had not Muscular, when he prevailed upon his doctor to give him Williams' Pink Pills. "It's all I can do," said Mr. Smith, "to thank the Post, it is the only place I can get them." Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were a great help to him, and he got well again. "I had not used those pills long before there was undoubted relief, more in fact than I had obtained from any other medicine. I continued their use and soon all symptoms of the trouble that had made my life one of much misery for many years was gone. I feel that I am cured, and have no hesitation in saying that the cure is due to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I never lose an opportunity of recommending the pills to neighbors who may be ailing."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure by going to the root of the disease. They plaudits urged the contestants. The tens of thousands thronging the spacious amphitheatre doubtless contributed some inspiration to the runners. Who would not prize the cheer of the throng? These to whom reference is made as witnesses are the heroes of faith whose deeds are recounted in chapter eleven. They may be spectators, but they have been witnesses for the truth. Many of them sealed their testimony with their blood. They did their will and died abounding. We see the example of their heroism. This is an inspiration. Surely we shall be inspired as they. Less was given to them than to us in the way of privilege, and more demanded of them than seems to be required of us. Of late years, the king of Greece has again seen the name of possible united Greece round sacred to such uses, has been broken, not by means of Aions and Sparta in arms, but by paths from the new world as well as the old, so that not only was it easier for the average American, but the road was better than any of classic days. Here in the words that constitute the text, is a summons to us to run the Christian race. "Whitherfore see ye also compassed about us a great cloud of witnesses, so mighty as to dash us to the ground with impatience the race that is set before us?" Can we do as well as they who have gone before? Can we do better?

TILL THEN.

Like the south flying swallows the summer has a wing,
Like the fast falling star from unknown to unknown,
Life flashes and fades and falls from our sight,
Good night, friends, good night.
Like homesickness awaiting those that seek the shores,
Like the birds that wait patient beneath the shadows,
Low and deep in our hearts till our hands meet
To kiss and greet them.
Till the winter comes, the hardy in New York City remain.

THE LITTLE BLACK IMPS
A Story of a German Baron and an American Woman.

er pass in America and drew little black devils while he was waiting to find out.

Upon the many pleasant and heterodox friends who visited the Hertzers was a newspaper man of a whimsical turn of mind. He had been the recipient on a certain occasion of a pack of playing cards in which each club spade, heart or diamond was represented by scarlet or black devils, and the design upon the backs of the cards was a writhing, twisting inferno of the same grotesque little creatures.

He left at these long and agreeably, did the newspaper man, and he was seated with an idea. This idea was the outcome of his observations. He had noticed that there was a look of extreme weariness in the eyes of the amiable Madam Hertzler and that she walked more slowly than she used, and her selections at the piano, which had once been noted for their length, were now brief and lacking in spirit. In short, the brave spirit of Madam Hertzler drooped under many burdens. So the newspaper man entered upon the making of a collection, assisted by the energetic and talented children of the baron. Little black devils were gathered from every part of the house; heads were torn from letters that the fascinating imps might be preserved, leaves were rent from books, and even a pocket handkerchief done in a procession of dancing imps in indelible ink was taken in charge.

The practical friend sent these to a certain much illustrated comic weekly and anxiously awaited the results. The family was of the opinion that there would be no results. The baron was in a state of peaceful ignorance.

But the results were almost dramatic. The comic weekly was amused, and it is not easy to amuse a comic weekly. It wanted a series, indefinitely continued, of little black devils illustrating current events.

The officious friend carried the good news to Baron von Hertzler. "Sir," stormed the baron, "you have exceeded your privileges. You have made me ridiculous. I am no clown to flip and kick while the people laugh. Will you have the great goodness to recall these personal possessions of mine from the stranger to whom you have confided them?"

The newspaper man was obdurate.

"You will be distinguished in a few minutes," he said. "I'm going to set my alarm clock so I can wake up at the proper moment and see the fun. No, I'll not write for the times. I've already sold part of them. The check will reach you in a few days. And you must be about those illustrations of current happenings. When they want a thing on paper, they want it. They don't care to wait."

"Am I to be at the beck and call of these men whom I have never seen?"

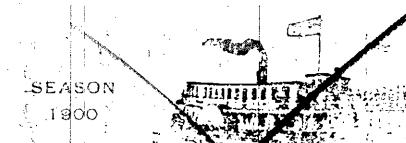

"It is not necessary to see them in order to be at their beck and call."

The baron considered all Americans stupid, but he regarded this one as particularly so, especially when he found that his family was besieged with the perverse man to insist upon the making of the little devils. Under protest, and with frequent lamentations that he would be made ridiculous, the man went to work.

Preparation, training, Christian life; both on the nature and necessity of it. "Lay aside every weight and the sins which do so easily beset us." Here is the training: Put on the "discrencher": guard against the woes of this world and the deceitfulness of riches. The race is to be run light. Especially must bearing sin be laid aside. Generally there is one weak point in every man. Achilles, the Grecian hero, was vulnerable in the heel; the hero of the human race, between the shoulders; and the stone from David's sling found an unprotected spot on the forehead of the Philistine giant, Goliath. Many a man of splendid gifts and of golden opportunity has failed because of the weakness or sin. Against this own great fault, set the guard, and with decision and courage resist. "God helps them who help themselves." We are in no condition to run this race unless at least we possess self-mastery.

22. An athletic trait—patience. This grace constitutes one of the highest virtues of life. Men are to be strong in faith and patience. The ideas of self-possession and endurance are embodied in the word. It is disconcerting to many an athlete to observe the paces of his competitor. He forgets himself, and loses his judgment; self-confidence is gone, and becoming confused, he fails. Nothing is better for such a time than knowledge of one's own powers and confidence in one's methods. Then can he who runs take the most of himself. Do not thereby by too close scrutiny of others ask, "What shall this man do?" forgetful of their place and ignoring their own powers, become disengaged and fail ingloriously? "Whatever you be to yourself," is sage counsel of which, perhaps, we all stand in need.

It is easy to run well for a time. Sustained effort is required, however, whenever anything worthy and lasting is to be accomplished. "He that endeavored to the end shall be saved." It is easy to run well when the way is smooth. A man is better tried when men and things are against him. This race is run in the face of difficulty, loss and danger. Be patient, therefore. So run that you may obtain "the crown of Christ." Did He suffer? So too was His lot, disciples deserted, enemies opposed, friends betrayed. Hail the shadow of the cross by shawing His life and its bitter pain were experienced, yet He endured. Consider Him," says the writer. "Thou art weary and faint in your mind. We are made partakers of God's grace if we hold the beginning of our confidence steadfast unto the end." If you hold on five minutes longer, the captain of the burning steamship, the pilot, "By God's help I will," he replied. Can we hold on minutes, months, years, through pain and suffering, desertion, sickness and sorrow, can we, we shall be saved and

A SARNIA LADY

Tells How Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills Cured Her Nervous Troubles and Strengthened Her Whole System.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are an inestimable boon to anyone suffering from any disease of arrangement of the heart or nerves or where the blood is thin and watery. Mrs. E. Horner, of 11 George Street, Sarnia, Ont., is one of those whose experience with this remedy is well worth considering.

It is as follows:—"I am pleased to recommend Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills to anyone suffering from nerve trouble, no matter how severe or of long standing. For years my nerves have been in a terribly weak condition, but Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, which I got at Geary's Pharmacy, have strengthened them greatly and invigorated my system, leaving me no excuse for not making known their virtues.

"I cannot refrain from recommending these pills to all sufferers as a splendid cure for nervousness and weakness."

I had not used the pills long before there was immediate relief, more in fact than I had obtained from any other medicine. I continued their use and soon all symptoms of the trouble that had made my life one of much misery for many years was gone. She was "not known to be rich even, which is the only excuse that an American girl has for living, and it was said she made some serious mistakes in her interpretation of the "Fifth Symphony."

Yet he married her, and they went to America.

"It is just as well," said his friends sadly. "Really, you know, it is all over with poor Max."

They felt that he was as good as dead.

It was dull in America. Well, New York wasn't so bad perhaps, but the other towns—bah! There wasn't a true city among them. It didn't count for a man to be anybody. No one paid any attention to Max because he was a tinsmith. It made him bitter. He had a little summer house built in the yard back of the house where they lived and smoked his pipe there and dreamed of Berlin. Also he planted some flowers and some little trees. He liked these and paid much attention to them. He studied a great deal—military tactics and botany. But he neglected to provide the daily bread. No one could blame him for it. It was an oversight on his part. His wife taught music. She gave private lessons and class lessons, and she sometimes performed at concerts. Her peculiar treatment of the "Fifth Symphony" did not militate against her in America.

In course of the long and busy years four children were born to the Hertzlers, but still the burden of the bread winning devolved upon madam. She never complained. It was the greatest pleasure in the world for her to return home and find the baron sitting there. She never saw a man so handsome. And he was always kind. Sometimes he found odd jobs to do—bookkeeping or work in a railroad office or book criticism. He was willing but not eager to work. Time was apt to hang heavily on his hands. And so it became his habit to amuse himself in a peculiar way—namely, by the making of little black devils. He made them on anything that chanced to be handy—an envelope, a scrap of paper, a playing card or a book margin. He represented them in every imaginable attitude. He gave them a number of subtle individualities. His mind appeared to be besotted by them. Many of his acquaintances had wondered in the course of their intercourse with him what it was that filled that large, handsome head. Now they seemed to be finding out. The little tiny imp sprang out of his cranium in such numbers that they threatened to leave it quite void and empty.

The children were growing up, and children cannot do that, no matter how unobtrusive they endeavor to be, without costing some one something. These children developed talents, and in a utilitarian age talents cannot be allowed to go to waste. Madame Hertzler considered it incumbent upon her to see that one studied dramatic expression and another the violin and another wood carving and another modeling in clay, besides all of the regulation studies. She brought a great circle of friends about her, who adored her; bohemian evenings and who considered the baron one of the most interesting gentlemen they had ever met.

The baron did not consider himself interesting. He was bored with himself. He wondered if time would never bring him out of his doldrums. He was a bore to all spectators these, who by their reading on paper, they want it. They don't care to wait."

"Am I to be at the beck and call of these men whom I have never seen?"

"It is not necessary to see them in order to be at their beck and call."

The baron considered all Americans stupid, but he regarded this one as particularly so, especially when he found that his family was languid with the perverse man to insist upon the naming of the little devils. Under protest, and with frequent lamentations that he would be made ridiculous, the baron worked on. The first few days were drudgery, but the second week saw him tolerant, the third week found him interested and at the end of a month he was enthusiastic. The joy of work—individual, creative work—was an emotion he had only just discovered. And when the monetary results became appreciable he grew almost proud. He began to gather ideas about the propriety of women working and finally he commanded his wife to cease her money earning. With a great show of wifely submission Madame Hertzler obeyed. She rested at last, after the day's heat and burden, and a smiling German gentleman, lord of his house and dictator over his dominions, made adorable little black devils in the solitude of his study.—Exchange.

A Gentle Rebuke.

In the center of a popular coffee house main room in Italy was a large marble slab, which covered the pipes that heated the place, and the tables were arranged around this.

There was always fine music there, on the evening, made by a man and his wife. She played on a strung instrument, and after several selections, she carried around a little silvered silver basket, in which she collected coins from the guests.

One night, as the music began, a man seated at one of the tables held up a gold coin. The woman smiled, and the man dropped it on the marble slab that covered the hot pipes. When she made her collection, she went last for the gold coin, but as she picked it up, she gave a cry and dropped it again, for it had become heated on the slab. The husband glared at the man, but did not say a word.

The next evening, when the musicians appeared, the woman's hand was bandaged, and she had some difficulty in managing her instrument. When she made her collection, she avoided the man who had played the practical joke on her, and night after night she did the same thing. In vain he offered her apologies, and other coins, but she merely bowed and smiled in passing him, and never allowed him to give her the slightest donation.

Mr. Beecher's Sermon Was Effective.

In the Plymouth congregation there was at one time a woman who was a thorn in the flesh. She had a harsh voice and a stiff manner of speaking. Her long drawn out, dull discourse wearied the congregation. But Mr. Beecher was patient. At last he, too, reached the limit of endurance, and one evening when she sat down, after talking nearly half an hour, he arose, and in his deep tones said slowly, "Nevertheless, I still believe in women speaking in meeting." She spoke no more.—Ladies' Home Journal.

CIVIC HOLIDAY.

The Mayor has proclaimed a Holiday for Friday Next.

Friday next will be Rat Portage's civic holiday. Mr. Gooding, the C.P.R. agent, has been able to secure a cheap rate for a big excursion to Winnipeg, and arrangements are being completed. Besides having an opportunity of visiting the Winnipeg exhibition the excursionists will see the big regatta given under the direction of the Winnipeg Rowing Club. Several crews from the Rat Portage Rowing Club will take part in the races which promises to be very exciting. The Winnipeggers are anxious to make up the prestige lost here on last Friday. The train leaves here at 1 p.m. returning will leave Winnipeg at 4 p.m. the evening, giving an opportunity to witness the fireworks after the grand trip. The fare has been placed at $1.00 each. This fare has been secured through the efforts of Mr. C. G. the popular C.P.R. agent, who always at the service of the patrons.

The Club Regatta.

Last Friday afternoon the rowing club gave its regatta in which four oared hooker crews participated. In the first race between Phillips and Langford, the former led till about 100 yards from the finish when Phillips' bowman seemed to break the sprig to his back and spied the chance of winning by fouling Langford's boat. Godwin and Link tried conclusions, and Link four started out well. On the home stretch, however, Link's under chain seemed to have an extrusion on one side, for they kept away from the course and nearly ran into a sailboat anchored some distance out of the way. While this was happening Godwin went over the line. Schenck pulled away from Motan in the fastest time ever made on the course. In the next race Chesterton led Emmons by about half a boat length. For the second race Motan had a corporation bears the title Minnesota and International Railway company. President Chas. S. Nellen, of the Northern Pacific, is the most prominent of the incorporators, and the others are H. A. Fabian, private secretary to the coast line executive; P. W. Cobbett, assistant secretary of that road; Emerson Hadley, at present in its legal department, and formerly general counsel of the St. Paul & Duluth, and Chas. W. Bunn, general counsel.

The five incorporators form the first board of directors, and the incorporation is for a period of 50 years. The first annual meeting of the new road will probably be held in the beginning of October, to ship all exhibits each year. The capital stock of the new corporation is $100,000, divided into 1,000 shares of $100 each.

The new railroad will be a measure to form a continuation of the Brainerd & Northern Minnesota, which is under Northern Pacific control.

Bemidji is the northern terminus of this line and the new route will form a new route under Northern Pacific control from the east to the international boundary. The corporation of the line under Northern Pacific control is said to have a bearing upon Canadian activity, owing towards the New East and West, line west of the boundary, to tap the Rainy lake mining region and the grain and section southeast of Winnipeg in Manitoba.

Camping Pastimes.

A most enjoyable camping party was given Tuesday evening at Mrs. Gilman's cottage on Cherry Island by the N.A.A.O. at the proper time. The Miss Alice Gilman, wife of her Harlem R.C. coarses an enigma in the guest, Miss Coddie of W.ipeg. The master and the members are pleased to make part of the evening which they will take place before the imminent arrival of the members of the N.A.A.O. It is noted that the action of the the picturesque effect of the campsite.

PROSPECTS ARE BRIGHT.

Conditions Never Better for the Monster Winnipeg Exhibition.

The management of the Winnipeg Industrial Exhibition association has never worked under as favorable conditions as far as exhibits are concerned as they do this year. Scores of applications for space from prospective exhibitors have come in from Canada and the United States pending into the offices of the association from each month, and indications point to a record breaking year in the number of exhibits. This fact is annual meeting of the new road will probably be held in the beginning of October, to ship all exhibits each year. The capital stock of the new corporation is $100,000, divided into 1,000 shares of $100 each.

This reduces the exhibitors' expenses down to a very small figure.

Rumohr in New York.

J. A. Rumohr, the champion amateur sculler, formerly of Rat Portage, but now of the Harlem rowing club, New York, is having some difficulty in being entered in the N.A.A.O. races this year. An investigation will be made pending acceptance. A writer in the New York Sun says this course was made necessary by the action of the Canadian A.A.O., which refused Rumohr's entry for the regatta held at Toronto July 2, and declined to give the Harlem R.C. any reason for doing so. The official stated, however, that they would submit their objections to Gilman's cottage on Cherry Island by the N.A.A.O. at the proper time. The Items of General Interest to Our Readers From All Parts of the World:

Three weeks ago Jacobs C. Melmo saw his wife's coffin lowered into grave in the Lutheran cemetery, New York. "I shall not be separated from you, my darling. I cannot bear the separation," were Melmo's words as the earth fell upon the coffin. On Tuesday he was found dead in his home, owing to excessive grief, the doctors say.

The Bell Island strikers have succeeded in preventing schooners from unloading coal, and the mine managers have appealed to the Supreme Court.

"More soldiers" is the demand which is coming to General MacArthur from every department of the Philippine Islands. Recent days have worked to vindicate Gen. Lawton's judgment that 100,000 troops would be needed to establish American sovereignty over the Filipinos.

It is said an English syndicate with $30,000,000 capital may start huge iron works in Kingston.

The Grand Trunk has made a new running record between Toronto and Montreal, the distance, 335 miles, being covered in 6 hours 30 min by the second section of the Chicago express.

W. H. Cartman, a prominent London barrister, was committed for trial on Tuesday on a charge of assaulting Robert McGarry, a 16-year-old boy whom he chastised with a cane for impertinence.

Rev. Hugh Mowat, for 43 years professor of Hebrew and Chaldee, Queen's college died at Kingston Sunday from the effects of a recent operation. He was 75 years old, and a younger brother of Sir Oliver, lieutenant-governor of Ontario.

James H. Swick, an old farmerized 70 years, living at East Sperre, near Chyanne, Ont., nine miles out, beat his wife to death with a hammer, Saturday and then shot himself with shotgun. A son who lived with them found them in the condition. The old man had been weak in the head for some time.

The widow of the late Pascual Gagne of Hull, a timeman who was electrocuted last week, has entered suit against the Hull Electric Co. for $5,000 damages.

Workmen testing a telescope in Rochester, N.Y., saw a thief steal a crock of butter a mile distant and caused his arrest.

The King's Daughters of Freehold, N.J., have hit upon an original plan to raise money for a public library, by collecting all the old rubber shoes and hose to sell for junk at 7 cents a pound.

Provincial Detective Rodgers is touring Eastern Ontario and is rounding up all the tramps he runs across. The detective is acting under instructions from the Ontario Government.

J. L. Bell, assistant gold commis-

Cattleman or Gambler.

"One day last fall," said a well-known Montana capitalist, "I was riding on a train in my state and got to be in pretty fair terms with the train boy by buying a few of the things he had to sell. It was not a very formal kind of a train, and when the boy had finished his rounds he came over to sit with me and 'chit a bit,' as he said. I was willing enough, as he was a sharp lad and there was nobody else to talk to, and so went right in things."

"Do you know," he said, "that I can tell by looking at a man mighty near what he is. Now, there's that fellow over there in the corner; he's a Chicago bramander. I can tell him by the way he lets his money go and the flip style he has when he talks to people. And that chap over there with the silk hat on? He's a preacher from a country town. He's a dead sure, and I'll go ask him if you say so."

"I didn't say so because I didn't care a continental, and the boy went on with his descriptions of the people on the train. At last I asked him what he thought I was. I had on a pretty flashy suit of light stuff and was thinking I was looking pretty well, so I was willing to risk the boy's venture. He looked me over for a full minute very carefully.

"Well," he said at last, "you've got a show of money, but I ain't dead sure whether you are a cattleman or a gambler."

The Center of the Earth.

Of late years the general view has been that the interior of the globe, though partly liquid, is for the most part solid. Some have considered that a section through the earth would show the following:

(1) An outer solid envelope, (2) a semifluid envelope, (3) a fluid envelope, (4) a semifluid envelope, (5) a solid nucleus. No. 1 results from a reduced temperature only, No. 2 from a pressure and temperature not quite sufficient for liquidation, No. 3 from a temperature sufficiently high to produce complete liquidation, No. 4 from a pressure so great as to prevent even terrific heat which most certainly exists deep down in the earth from melting the material on its surface, and No. 5 from a pressure so enormous completely the heat and power even of the most intense of volcanoes.

The pressure is stated to be at the center of the earth 7,180,000,000 pounds to the square foot, a pressure so enormous that no known substance could resist it. Even hydrogen would under such conditions become as hard as a diamond. Hence it seems probable that, far from there being a vacuum at the center of the earth, there is a mass of intensely solid matter.

Elliott, who has recently been investigating the outbreak of diphtheria among the Mennonites, has reported to the Manitoba provincial health officer that he has discovered no less than 13 deaths due to diphtheria within the past fortnight. The disease is of a most virulent type, and has been concealed by the people, who guard it with indifference.

He Wanted a Drink.

Some years ago Colonel Crisp was in New York, and being in attendance at a certain notable political gathering in Madison Square Garden, was called on

Do You Eat Out or In?

The number and variety of knives and forks that now grace a well equipped and formal dinner table may well dismay one unused to such a variegated display of cutlery and silver. There are forks for the oysters, for the fish and for the roast and forks as well for anything else that may be served. There are also knives to correspond to the forks that may be needed. These implements that social convention decrees to be necessary to convey food to the mouth are usually laid out in formidable rows on either side of the plate.

The other evening a simple western maiden, at her first eastern dinner surveyed her supply of knives and forks with growing trepidation. Her common sense told her that they were laid out in the regular order in which it was intended that they should be used, but nothing in her experience had taught her which was the right end of the row to start in with. Finally, in despair, she sought help from her next door neighbor, a prominent physician. "Say, doc," she questioned anxiously as she pointed at the offending objects, "do you eat out or in?"—New York Tribune.

Wanted to Warn Him.

Sir Algernon West tells this story in his "Recollections": One day the late Sir George Campbell, who had a very strident, loud, rasping voice, called on Sir Algernon, who was then secretary to Mr. Gladstone, to talk over the land question.

After he had been in conversation about three minutes the office keeper appeared, bearing the card of an M. P. who, he said, was very anxious to see Sir Algernon. The latter said he was sorry to be engaged. In another minute he appeared with the card of a well known peer who was most desirous to have a word with him. Again the latter said he was too busy to see him just then. In another minute the man again came in with a huge end saying the lord mayor and sheriff of London wanted to speak to Sir Algernon West very urgently in the next room.

Sir Algernon apologized to Sir George and went out to such great dignitaries. When he got out of the room, the office keeper started him by saying, "There ain't nothin' he's got, but I was afraid a madman had to be set loose to you somehow, and I was sent to you to see."

A Spree on Sixpence.

An exercise sixpence a day for 37 years, to the sum of £1,000,000, was every week spent. No waste of the hand. Land, once at the end of the period he gave his wife sixpence more than the full amount. This so satisfied the thrifty wif, in that she went to consult the meetster on the subject. He tried to comfort her by saying that sixpence in 37 years was not a large amount.

"It's not the money I'm thinking of," she replied, "but a man fearing that Mrs. Mac has been taking to drink and betting, maybe, and other worldly pleasures."
